Advisory Fee Deduction Program

PROTECTIVE® INVESTORS BENEFIT ADVISORY VARIABLE ANNUITY

Protective refers to Protective Life Insurance Company and Protective Life and Annuity Insurance Company. For Financial Professional Use Only. Not for Use With Consumers.

Program overview

The Advisory Fee Deduction Program is an automated process for deducting advisory fees from annuity contracts and remitting them to the advisor providing advice for managing the assets. The program is designed to be consistent with an IRS Private Letter Ruling (PLR) clarifying that advisory fees deducted from the contract will not be treated as an amount received by the contract owner.<sup>1</sup>

While the IRS does not allow a tax deduction of advisory fees on nonqualified accounts, such fees charged for the management of certain annuities are considered "integral to the operation of the contract" and, in accordance with the PLR, are not taxed as income to the contract holder.

Program benefits

Automated Eliminates manual billing process.

Direct No need to deduct fee from separate brokerage accounts.

Transparent

Easy for clients to understand that the fee is coming directly from the annuity.

Benefit friendly Advisory fee deduction has no impact on living and death benefit guarantee values.

No 1099

Consistent with recent PLRs and eliminates taxreporting requirements for the end client.

Compatible

Advisory fee can be deducted in advance or in arrears.

- Recent PLRs mean that advisory fees are not likely subject to taxation when withdrawn from nonqualified variable annuity contracts, providing a potential tax advantage to clients.
- "Last in, first out" tax treatment of an annuity allows for the advisor fee to potentially reduce the overall tax liability to the end client.

The program in action

There are some possible advantages to deducting an advisory fee directly from an annuity, including reduced overall taxes paid. Additionally, since most other nonqualified investments enjoy a stepped-up cost basis at death, there is a potential benefit for beneficiaries when fees are deducted from an annuity.

How it works

- A new client has a variable annuity with a $500,000 cost basis. You manage the annuity for 10 years and charge the client 1% in annual advisory fees.
- You are also managing their brokerage account consisting of mutual funds and can choose to deduct the 1% advisory fee for the annuity directly from the annuity account or from the brokerage account.
- Assumes 0% annual growth and no fees except advisory fee in both accounts.

Comparison of annuity advisory fees

Annuity advisory fees deducted from the annuity		Annuity advisory fees deducted from a brokerage account
Annuity account value	$700,000	Annuity account value $700,000
Annuity advisory fees	$66,933	Annuity advisory fees $0
Remaining annuity account value	$633,067	Remaining annuity account value $700,000
Cost basis	$500,000	Cost basis $500,000
Taxable gain	$133,067	Taxable gain$200,000

Deduction of annuity advisory fees from the annuity would reduce the taxable gain of the annuity by 100% of the deducted fees, or $66,933.

Deduction of annuity advisory fees from a brokerage account would reduce both gains and cost basis, resulting in less tax advantage.

Additional considerations

- Advisor fees cannot exceed 1.50% annually for contracts without an optional living benefit, death benefit or both. For contracts with optional benefits, advisory fee deductions cannot exceed 1.00% annually.
- Fees charged by an advisor must only pertain to the advice given on the annuity contract from which the fees are deducted.
- The fee must be remitted to the advisor directly by the insurance company in accordance with an agreement that is signed by the advisor and contract owner.
