Carve out a stronger incentive to reward and retain leaders

Executive benefits create a valuable incentive to reward and retain leadership talent, but traditional group insurance plans can fall short of meeting their protection needs.

We understand the challenge — that's why we offer executive life insurance solutions designed for group term carve-out plans. Each of our solutions offers coverage tailored to the needs of your leadership talent, so your organization can deliver a more meaningful incentive.

What is a group term carve-out plan?

A group term carve-out plan (GTCO) is a special life insurance program designed to reward executive, highly-compensated employees with an additional benefit beyond what may be available through an organization's regular group term life insurance benefit plan. The employer pays 100% of the premium for this distinct set of employees.

Solutions to meet the needs of your organization

Every organization is different, so we offer a suite of executive life insurance solutions to cover a range of business needs. Together, these solutions are part of a program that delivers cost-effective and easy-to-manage benefits to your organization.

What happens next?

1

If you decide this program is right for your organization, your financial professional will ask you to complete a census of the initial employees to be included.

2

Your financial professional will then send the necessary paperwork to our product administrator, and we will review and respond. If approved, the offer will include a summary of the case, the maximum face amounts available and any required stipulations.

3

Once the case is approved, an implementation conference call will be scheduled to walk through an enrollment timetable. Individual executive employees can then finalize their online applications, and policies will be issued.
